

Sustainability and Comfort: Personalised Water Bottles

Personalised water bottles and sport bottles are premium corporate gifts for companies, as they have all the features of a successful product. Useful, versatile, available in various designs and with a large print area, it is no coincidence that they belong to the most requested promotional products. They are suitable for any season, look fine and allow you to customise the entire surface. So, they ensure maximum visibility to the company logo or slogan.

Besides these details, promotional drink bottles with logo are effective tools to combat the use of plastic and the environmental disasters that result from it. More convenient than disposable versions, drink bottles do not require us to give up any comfort. Instead, they are appreciated both for their usefulness and for the green image they give your company. That is why creating personalised water bottles with logo is always a winning move.

Promotional Drink Bottles: the Pros of Customising Thermal, Eco-Friendly or Sports Bottles for Your Company

When we go on a trip, to the beach, when we start an excursion or go out of town, or when we meet up with friends for a picnic, we always carry our drink bottle with us. Most of the time it is a personalised model. We may have bought it ourselves or received it as a gift, perhaps with other promotional products. Personalised water bottles with logo are the trump card of all brands that care about the environment, but not only. Thanks to the increasing popularity, custom printed water bottles have become one of the most requested promotional products by any business activity.

There are lightweight versions for children and athletes as well as smaller ones for anyone going out for a short time. In the same way, we find spacious drink bottles for whoever has to go to the mountains, the gym, the library or work. Promotional drink bottles with logo appeal to everyone, because they are very useful, comfortable and special. Printing or engraving them will turn your sport or drink bottles into accessories to grow fond of. Both for their function and for their looks, your personalised water bottles will be taken everywhere: from the office to the park, from the university to sports centres. And, every time, your branded drink bottles will spread your logo very quickly and effectively.

Personalised Water Bottles with Logo: Promotional Gifts for All Targets

Small or large, wide or thin, bottle-shaped or looking like a cup, our promotional drink bottles are available in a thousand versions. They are all suitable to meet everyone's tastes and needs. And this does not refer to companies only, but to targets as well. A fashion house or a chic clothing store may want to choose the outstandingly elegant models, such as aluminium or glass drink bottles. Then there are the classic types, which look quite neutral. These personalised water bottles with logo are ideal if your target is wide, varied or if you do not know their tastes well.

As for functionality, on the other hand, we need to ask ourselves how, where and when our custom printed drink bottles will be used the most. In the case of a sports target, for instance, most companies customise sports bottles, which are perfect for physical activity. Whether your customers work mainly in the office or away from home, personalised thermal bottles will be the top corporate gifts. In short, it is all about studying your goal: the wide choice of custom printed water bottles will definitely give you the promotional products you are looking for.

Personalised Water Bottles with Logo as Corporate Gifts for the Team

In the business world, it is increasingly common to offer corporate gifts to employees. The most popular times for this are Christmas, right after hiring, the beginning of the year and when everyone is back from holidays. There are several personalised corporate gifts that can be given to employees to thank them for their work and make them feel an active part of the brand. But our personalised water bottles with logo are undoubtedly among the most popular choices and never out of place.

Branded water bottles and sport bottles are very useful in the workplace. They allow everyone to stay hydrated, as is the case with personalised mugs. These, too are not by chance very popular as corporate gifts for the work team. Offering personalised water bottles with logo to your crew shows care, not only towards your business, but towards the well-being of your employees as well. This simple gesture affects the whole team in a very positive way. Of course, it increases productivity. However, it first of all strengthens the bonds within the team and with employee and employer. Because the latter, with these branded water bottles, will have proved to be a point of reference and a reliable figure.

Personalised Water Bottles and Sport Bottles: Functional and Practical Corporate Gifts to Carry Around

Promotional drink bottles with logo are successful for many reasons. Among these, they protect the environment, are reusable and save money as a result. Plus, they turn out to be comfortable in many contexts and can become trusted objects. All these qualities make them perfect as custom promotional products. Also because they will probably be used often and have a good chance of creating an intimate relationship with those who receive them as corporate gifts.

Our custom printed water bottles and drink bottles can be purchased in different versions, depending on the materials or particular functions. Not to mention the other options, such as size, colours, shapes and customisation possibilities. In any case, all these personalised water bottles with logo prove to be incredibly comfortable, practical and functional.

Using them is very simple, whether they snap open or are provided with the classic cap with screw closure. Some models - especially sports ones - are equipped with a hook or a carabiner, which make our promotional drink bottles with logo perfect to be carried around everywhere. We then find branded water bottles and drink bottles with a dispensing cap, some with a tea infuser, while others are foldable.

Drink, Sport, Water Bottles: Which Promotional Products to Choose, for Whom and How to Make Them

Choosing branded water bottles as the next promotional products for your marketing strategy opens the way to different possibilities. We have seen that our promotional drink bottles with logo are available in a thousand versions, each with particular details that make all models special. But one of the main features that distinguishes the various types of custom printed water bottles on our website is the material with which they are made.

This is important because the material determines aesthetic rendering, weight, the possibility of customisation and, in some cases, even functionality. So it is that we see:

- Personalised aluminum water bottles: these corporate gifts last over time thanks to the resistant material with which they are manufactured. Suitable for any occasion, these branded water bottles can be used in sports activities because they are lightweight as well. Basically, they combine a material of excellent quality with the practicality of use. Aluminium drink bottles can be customised with engraving or digital printing depending on the model. Both techniques guarantee very high precision results. Engraving, in particular, will give your corporate gifts a refined appearance.
- Personalised sports bottles: this category includes custom printed water bottles made with different materials but with a common feature: they are all designed for sports. With increasing attention to physical health, movement has become part of everyday life as a method of keeping one's body healthy. Sports bottles are essential for anyone who practices yoga, jogging, CrossFit or any other sport. However, they are very useful for whoever goes out for a walk and wants a comfortable accessory to have at hand as well. The main advantage of these products is that they are comfortable to use and carry around.
- Personalised metal water bottles: with an elegant design, metal drink bottles are among the most popular in the world of custom promotional products. The main advantage is longevity: these accessories are durable, seemingly indestructible. Thanks to the excellent quality materials of which they are made, these drink bottles can be effective for several years. As a consequence, they guarantee the company a virtually unlimited advertising. Engraved or custom printed metal water bottles can be made original in many ways and will become exceptional promoters of the brand.

- Personalised plastic water bottles: a different example is that of plastic drink bottles, which are light and practical to take with you at all times. Despite the material of which they are made, they represent a good green alternative to disposable bottles. They can be used several times, helping to reduce the environmental impact of plastic significantly. There are eco-friendly options made with biodegradable materials as well. Weight is one of the main pros of these models. For this reason, people who practice sport or go out on a walk use them the most. The techniques which we can use to create plastic promotional drink bottles are mostly digital. These will render details and, in some cases, colours in high-definition.

- Personalised glass water bottles are a partout for all companies that want to promote a green image and communicate interest in the environmental issue. Managers often give these personalised corporate gifts to their employees, to encourage the use of eco-friendly products starting from their work context.

These custom drink bottles are full of surprises: they are resistant and versatile. The surface of our custom glass drink bottles can be printed with digital techniques, which will produce a result rich in details and of great aesthetic and communicative impact.

- Custom eco-friendly water bottles: this category includes drink bottles made of alternative materials, which make a substantial contribution to the fight against climate change. Each model has different features depending on its composition. As a consequence, different printing techniques will be allowed. The common factor between these promotional products is the possibility of promoting a sustainable lifestyle. Being made with innovative materials, these personalised water bottles with logo can be an interesting discovery for those who do not know about these alternatives yet. By distributing these corporate gifts, then, you have the chance to spread greater awareness about the green options available.

Some custom printed water bottles stand out for their functionality, rather than for the materials with which they are made. This is the case of personalised thermal bottles. In summer as well as in winter, maintaining the temperature of the drinks can often make a difference. And this type of branded water bottles performs precisely this function. It is probably because of this uniqueness that they are so successful. By giving them to customers and collaborators, you can count on a performative product. Anyone can sip some hot tea in winter, while sitting among the university desks or in the office. On the other hand, these personalised water bottles with logo allow you to enjoy fresh water on sultry summer days as well. Just as in the case of personalised thermal mugs or personalised thermal cups, these promotional products are suitable as corporate gifts for employees as well as for any other type of marketing campaign.

In a nutshell, branded water bottles are passe-partouts for every promotion, regardless of company, sector of activity, occurrence, target. Everyone uses them and they come in handy when you have to take them with you. Besides, they guarantee the company maximum freedom of expression on the one hand and a great logo exposure on the other. Plus, promotional drink bottles with logo ensure anyone who receives them a constant supply of water or any other drink, everywhere and at all times. For this reason and for the help they offer to the environment, creating personalised water bottles with logo is a strategy that every brand must resort to sooner or later.

To learn more about the usefulness of the water bottle in everyday life and in protecting the planet, read this article.

