Practical guide to choosing Personalised Ice cube sets

A practical worksheet for comparing configurations, packaging and branding options.

Start with the intended use

Choose a set based on who will receive it and how it will be presented. These suggestions are indicative: always check which combinations are available on each product page.

Intended use	Configuration to consider	Key check
Distilleries and tastings	Stone set in rigid box; tongs if useful	Matches the bottle or tasting experience
Hotels and suites	Well-presented rigid case for amenities or welcome gift	Presentation, size and logo on the packaging
Bars and restaurants	Reusable set in steel or stone, possibly in a pouch	Easy storage and handling
Events and corporate kits	Compact pouch or personalised box	Transport and brand visibility

Compare materials

Component	When it can be useful	What to check
Soapstone	Natural presentation, typical for tasting sets	Finish, shape and number of cubes
Stainless steel	Contemporary look; some models can be personalised	Whether engraving on the cubes is possible
Rigid box	Premium gift, accessories neatly arranged	Number of compartments and overall size
Soft pouch	Compact kits, easy carrying and distribution	Fabric, closure and usable logo area

3 Plan personalisation early

If your logo needs to remain visible during use, look for a model that allows branding on the cubes or, where available, on the tongs. If presentation matters more, compare the lid, pouch and packaging.

Engraving, transfer, digital transfer, screen printing and pad printing are not interchangeable: the right choice depends on the material, graphic details and available print area.

Checklist and comparison worksheet

Complete these checks before choosing a model and confirming personalisation.

Pre-order checklist

Use and contents

- ☐ I have identified the recipients and intended use.
- ☐ I have checked the material, shape and number of cubes.
- ☐ I have checked whether tongs are included, if needed.
- ☐ I have considered the box dimensions if pairing it with a bottle.

Logo and packaging

- ☐ I have chosen what to personalise: pouch, box, cubes or tongs (if offered).
- ☐ I have checked the print area and technique on the product page.
- ☐ I have considered whether the design needs special detail or colours.

Final checks

- ☐ I have compared the configurations actually available.
- ☐ I have checked whether I can order a sample.
- ☐ I have reviewed the graphic proof before approving the order.
